

Optimal Career Selection

Building a Career for Life

When it comes to deciding on a future career, it could be a nightmare. Not only for the person who has to decide, but also for the family - and sometimes the daunting decision can even influence friends. It is a very important decision to make. It could shape the individual's entire life and could be the breaking point between a lifetime of success or failure! Every effort must be made to make the best decision possible. This is not a day with someone, a few tests, an interview, and a directive to become this or that - it is a process...

...This process must run over a minimum of a few days. There is a need for time to think, be informed and think again, do a bit of research, ask different people about their experiences of specific careers, and so on. Shadowmatch Career Coaches take this process very seriously. They use an artificially intelligent system to guide a person through a process of a few (about four) sessions of feedback and planning. They will never tell anybody that they can go and become anything, study in any direction, and qualify for whatever they want. They will never do this. Shadowmatch Career Coaches use a highly sophisticated system to guide and direct an individual towards an optimal career selection process.

How it Works

The individual who wants to decide on a future career completes the Shadowmatch worksheet. On completion of the worksheet, the Shadowmatch system sends this person two reports: The Personal Feedback Report: which is an outline of their habits, and a Career Report: which is a report with specific guidelines on the optimal career for that person.

Then, during the first meeting with their career coach, the Career Report is worked through step by step. The coach will ensure that every aspect of the report is clear and will guide the individual to make notes. The next phase is to make a visual summary of the coachee's optimal career and to list a few possible jobs that will be a good choice. The third phase is to use the system to test whether a specific career will be a good fit for the individual's personal and unique habits. Only then will a decision be made on possible career options. Once a specific career path has been decided on, the coach will guide the individual through the process of compiling an optimal career plan: what to study, where to start, what to look for, and so on.

Get a Coach

If you want a successful career, you need the optimal starting point. Sign up with a Shadowmatch Career Coach and get the best advice possible. Shadowmatch builds systems that build success for all!